■ A Haven For Investment

The Ministry of DONER and Indian Chamber of Commerce organized the 3rd North East Business Summit on April 10, 2007 at New Delhi. The meeting was attended by the Chief Ministers of Meghalaya, Assam, Sikkim, Nagaland, Manipur and representatives of Financial Institutions. The Meghalaya Chief Minister was accompanied by the Meghalaya Industries Minister, Mr Nehlang Lyngdoh, Chief Secretary, Mr Ranjan Chatterjee and Commissioner and Secretary, Industries, Mr A Som.

Dr Lapang in his speech said that Meghalaya is a convenient location for investments. The North Eastern Region is perceived as an insurgency prone region which is unsafe for investment, but he said that the State Government is creating a congenial atmosphere for investors to come and invest in the State in different sectors. He said that insurgency in the State is being dealt with firmness. The people of Meghalaya have already tasted the fruit of industrial development and wants the investment climate to be cordial. Dr Lapang also requested the investors to make their own assessment of the security climate in the State of Meghalaya and they will find that there is no cause for worry. The State Government is ready to enter into dialogue with industrial companies to take all possible measures to allay fears and ensure a sense of security, he added.

Dr Lapang stated that politically, Meghalaya is stable and over the years a great attitudinal change has been witnessed in the political class and amongst the people in general. Earlier, many political leaders and a sizeable percentage of the local population had opposed the idea of a rail head at Byrnihat but now Byrnihat has become a hub of industrial activity and the pressure groups are clamouring for expediting the implementation of the rail head project at Byrnihat.

Dr Lapang also made a special announcement that the State Government is paying special attention to Garo Hills to improve the security scenario and to attract investments. He said that the Government is acquiring 182 hectares of land at Mendipathar, East Garo Hills to develop into an Industrial Growth Centre.

While informing about the investment opportunities in Meghalaya, Dr Lapang said that Meghalaya is emerging as a major player in cement and Ferro Alloy industries. Agriculture and Horticulture produce as well as timber forest produce constitute a vast resource base for the growth of various kinds of processing industries. In the Tourism sector, Dr Lapang said that Meghalaya has great untapped potential for the growth of tourism and with proper planning, it can be developed into a dream destination of the North East. He also informed that the State government now has a tourism policy under which intending investors can avail various incentives. In the health-care sector, Dr Lapang informed that Meghalaya is an ideal location for health care enterprises attributing to the strong base of traditional medicine and medicinal plants and herbs. He said that with proper investment and management, the potential of traditional medicine can be fully exploited. National players in modern health care will find Shillong most attractive destination because of its natural advantages, he added.

While making special mention on the prospects of bamboo based units in Meghalaya, Dr Lapang said that the government is taking great interest in schemes to improve the yield of bamboo from forests and plantations, to harness new technologies for bamboo based enterprises and to replace traditional tools used by craftsmen with modern, efficient tools. He also informed that a separate cell for bamboo has been opened in the state headquarter of the department of forest and environment and with the help of international agencies and cooperation of the industry, it is hoped to make bamboo the largest single provider of jobs and income in the State, he opined.

With regard to Information Technology, Dr Lapang said that Meghalaya has ample scope in the sector stating that the English speaking population in the State is an asset for IT enabled service providers who would like to set up their units in the State. He said that with the proposal for setting up of an IT park in Shillong by STPI, New Delhi, investors should find Meghalaya an attractive destination for IT enabled service.

Dr Lapang, who is also Chairman of the Single Window Agency, informed that for speedy clearances of industrial proposals in the State, the State Government has set up the Single Window system. He said that the MIDC acts as a nodal agency for providing all assistance including subsidies and incentives. He informed that the organisation also provides loans for industries and services to a limited extent. He also informed that the MIDC has not defaulted in the repayment of loans taken from financial institutions such as the IDBI and the SIDBI. He said that the excellent record of the MIDC hopes to attract finance from various financial institutions and agencies connected with the financing of industrial and service enterprises nationally.

NATIONAL BAMBOO MISSION LAUNCHED

The Department of Agriculture & Co-operation, Ministry of Agriculture, Government of India has recently launched a centrally sponsored scheme “National Bamboo Mission” (NBM) for addressing the issues relating to the development of bamboo in the country. The cost of the Mission is estimated at Rs. 5.68 billion with 100% assistance of the Central Government. The scheme will be implemented by the Division of Horticulture under the Department of Agriculture and Cooperation in the Ministry of Agriculture, New Delhi. Under the NBM, an area of 1,76,000 hectares will be brought under bamboo cultivation in both forest and non-forest areas during the 10th and 11th Five Year Plan. Under this Mission, it is proposed to generate employment of 9.7 lakh mandays and 50.0 million mandays through nursery and plantation activity.

The main objectives of National Bamboo Mission are to promote the growth of the bamboo sector through an area based regionally differentiated strategy; to increase the coverage of area under bamboo in potential areas, with improved varieties to enhance yields; to promote marketing of bamboo and bamboo based handicrafts; to establish convergence and synergy among stake-holders for the development of bamboo; to promote, develop and disseminate technologies through a seamless blend of traditional wisdom and modern scientific knowledge and to generate employment opportunities for skilled and unskilled persons, especially unemployed youths.

The National Bamboo Mission will have three tier structures, the National Apex Committee (NAC) under the Chairmanship of Union Minister of Agriculture, the National Steering Committee (NSC) headed by the Secretary, Department of Agriculture & Cooperation (DAC), to oversee the activities of the Mission and approve the Action

Plans and the National Bamboo Cell (NBC) headed by the Mission Director, NBM, in the DAC, Government of India.

YOUTH Fest 2007

The Youth Fest 2007 organized by the Directorate of Sports and Youth Affairs at J. N. Sports Complex from 16th-20th April, 2007 and coordinated by Sr. Magdalene Synnah, FMA and Fr. Anthony Kharkongor, SDB is an expression of the Department's commitment to empower the youth for success and responsible leadership for the future. Altogether, 434 participants drawn from the seven districts of the State took active part. The motto of the Youth Fest was "Live and Learn Together". All the participants were divided into eight groups named after the rivers of the State.

The Youth Fest was the brain child of Mr. Aldous Mawlong, the Director of Sports and Youth Affairs. The rationale behind the Youth Fest was to power the youth, tap their potential, increase their capacity building and teach them to respect other communities, tribes, cultures and religions. More importantly, while doing so, the Fest aimed at making the young participants aware of the pitfalls of HIV/AIDS, early marriages, the importance of managing one's finances and the need to be prepared for disasters, particularly as the North East falls in Zone V in the seismic map.

Career options after 10+2 and Graduation level were considered immediate necessity. As a result instructions on leadership training, entrepreneurship guidance, survival strategies and Mass Media were incorporated in the programme. A one day exposure trip to the Industrial Estate at Umiam, initiated the participants to the world of entrepreneurship and industry.

The whole Fest was marked with fun, frolic and amusement. The quiz, singing, drama, extempore and fancy dress competitions drew loud applause from participants, as well as officials and supervisors. An overwhelming 75%-80% of the participants said that youth fest was the best programme ever attended and wanted it to be organized by the Department of Sports and Youth Affairs every year and possibly at the District level. As organizers, it was satisfying to see the transformation that came over the participants. Being far away from home, having to fend for themselves, making new friends and learning new things has helped them grow in confidence and realize potentials that they thought did not exist in them.

What was heartening, was to see the participants eagerness to imbibe as much knowledge as possible from the resource persons, who did a brilliant job in motivating them.

With regard to planning and preparation, a lot of meticulous planning, careful preparation and hard work had gone into it. Working together with one mind and one goal, the steering committee under the leadership of the Minister for Sports and Youth Affairs, Mr. Zenith Sangma and Mr. Aldous Mawlong, worked tirelessly to see the plans come to fruition.

The Youth Fest would have been without life, had it not been for Sr. Magdalene Synnah and Fr. Anthony Kharkongor who provided all the sparks and injected life into it, as animators. It is also acknowledged here the huge contribution made by the Sisters manning the computers, etc, the musicians, the volunteers, supervisors, chairmans of various committees, conveners and members. The staff of the Directorate also worked hard behind the scene to ensure that the Youth Fest 2007 was a great success.

Let the spirit of the Youth Fest reign supreme.

Long Live Youth Fest!!!

PRIME PERK:

A HOUSE FOR THE FIRST CITIZEN

It's the ultimate perk that comes with being President of India. As the First Citizen, all 200,000 square feet of floor area, with its 1,700 million bricks and 3 million cubic feet of stone are yours for the taking for five whole years. And don't forget the sprawling Mughal Garden, spread over 13 acres. Prime property doesn't get better than this.

The splendour of the Rashtrapati Bhavan is larger than life. Few official residential premises of the Head of State in the world can match it in terms of size, vastness and magnificence. Its breathtaking architecture, with Roman, Mughal, Buddhist and European influences, is a work of art.

Having researched the presidential residence extensively, Aman Nath, author of Dome Over India. Rashtrapati Bhavan says, "Lutyens was not only dismissive about Indian architecture, he was against everything Indian. Arrogant and racist, Lutyens had made some very derogatory comments about India and its architecture. According to Nath, Lord Harding was the real hero of the Rashtrapati Bhavan story. "The Rashtrapati Bhavan would have looked like any British building had the then Viceroy Lord Harding not given strict instructions to Lutyens to assimilate the designs from Indian architecture. Though an imperialist himself, Lord Harding, the then Viceroy of India, saw things from the broader perspective of a leader. He directed Lutyens to build something to give the Indians a sense of pride about their civilization. Forced to borrow from Indian designs, Lutyens did conform mildly, but reluctantly, and without openly expressing any sense of rapture, "Which makes the term 'Lutyens' Delhi' a misnomer of sorts. "Yes, because contrary to the common perception not a single bungalow in the Lutyens' Bungalow Zone has been built by Lutyens. He built only four bungalows all within the Presidents Estate', explains Nath.

The Rashtrapati Bhavan is the biggest residence of any President in the world. Walk in through the majestic gates and you feel tiny. First up, there's the towering Jaipur Column. 145 feet tall and topped by a bronze lotus from which risers a six pointed glass star, the name of the column comes from the fact that its cost was borne by the Maharaja of Jaipur. Luxury gets a whole new meaning in the Yellow Drawing room, the Grey Drawing room and the grand Banquet Hall. Originally built as the state ball-room, the Ashoka Hall has a wooden floor with a dance space in the centre. The ceiling of this hall is adorned with an elaborate painting of a royal hunting expedition. There's also the North Drawing Room, where heads of state are received. Step into the Durbar Hall and a two-ton chandelier hanging from a height of 33 metres greets you. Once known as the Throne Room, this hall now has a simple chair for the President, instead of the erstwhile thrones. If the next President has a green thumb, there's going to be loads to do in his personal garden. Spread over an area of 13 acres and divided into four parts, the Mughal Garden has a series of ornamental fountains, walls, gazebos and screens, combined with scores of trees, flowers and shrubs. A herbal garden has also come up in the recent past.

Trivia about the imposing estate is a plenty. An insider let it slip that the tubs in the bathroom were large enough for the biggest man to soak. And the toilet seats were 3 by 5 feet of teak bench, which revealed the bowl only when lifted.

Recalls Sureshwar Sawhney ADC to Dr. Rajendra Prasad, "The main kitchen was fabulous. We had food you couldn't imagine. All served on exquisite china and silver. We ate in luxury everyday'. Adds Nath, "inside gossip is that the Bhavan kitchens cooked much more than required, so some of the food was smuggled out to a dhaba in Gole Market where a blackboard proudly said Rashtrapati Bhavan ka khana," adds Nath. Old timers in the kitchen add, "Russians were big eaters. They used to have all meals, then send for omelets and sandwiches in their rooms. They ate every scrap. And the Polish delegation, when it visited, smoked before, after and during their meals'.

Interestingly, the President does not occupy the suites occupied by the Viceroys. Instead he occupies one of the guest bedrooms. The First Indian governor general, C. Rajagopalachari, considered the master bedrooms too ostentatious for his humble tastes and all Presidents thereafter have followed tradition. Obviously, guests are always welcome at the Rashtrapati Bhavan — the place has over 350 rooms, as compared to the 132 in the White House. Go figure!

Compassion

A nurse took the tired, anxious serviceman to the bedside.
“Your son is here,” she said to the old man.
She had to repeat the words several times before the patient’s eyes opened.

Heavily sedated because of the pain of his heart attack, he dimly saw the young uniformed Marine standing outside the oxygen tent. He reached out his hand. The Marine wrapped his toughened fingers around the old man’s limp ones, squeezing a message of love and encouragement.

The nurse brought a chair so that the Marine could sit beside the bed. All through the night the young Marine sat there in the poorly lighted ward, holding the old man’s hand and offering him words of love and strength. Occasionally, the nurse suggested that the Marine move away and rest awhile.

He refused. Whenever the nurse came into the ward, the Marine was oblivious of her and of the night noises of the hospital — the clanking of the oxygen tank, the laughter of the night staff members exchanging greetings, the cries and moans of other patients.

Now and then she heard him say a few gentle words. The dying man said nothing, only held tightly to his son all through the night.

Along towards dawn the old man died. The Marine released the now lifeless hand he had been holding and went to tell the nurse. While she did what she had to do, he waited.

Finally, she returned. She started to offer words of sympathy but the Marine interrupted her.

“Who was that man?” he asked. The nurse was startled, “he was your father,” she answered. “No, he wasn’t,” the Marine replied. “I never saw him before in my life”.

“Then why didn’t you say something when I took you to him?”

“I knew right away there had been a mistake, but I also knew he needed his son, and his son just wasn’t here. When I realized that he was too sick, to tell whether or not I was his son, knowing how much he needed me, I stayed”.

MEETING ON IMPLEMENTATION OF MID DAY MEAL

In order to facilitate effective implementation of Mid Day Meal (MDM) programme in all LP Schools, the District Administration along with the DI Office, Tura organized a meeting with the teachers and members of government-run and adhoc LP school managing committees (SMCs) under Tura Urban at the District Auditorium on May 18, 2007.

During the interaction with the SMC members and teachers of LP schools, it was found that only two schools under Tura Urban, namely, St. Xavier's LP School and Rongkhon LP School, were implementing the MDM programme as per the guidelines and giving cooked meals to their children regularly (20 days a month).

West Garo Hills Deputy Commissioner & Chairman of the Steering Committee on MDM, Mr. P. Sampath Kumar informed the SMC members that the purpose of the meeting was to find out whether they were implementing the MDM on all school days, the mode of implementation and what kind of problems they face in implementing the programme. Lack of initiative on the part of SMC and lack of community participation were found to be the main causes of failure in effective implementation of the programme.

The Deputy Commissioner took serious note of those SMCs which were not regularly implementing MDM in their respective schools. He said that not giving cooked meals to children is a serious violation of the law of the land and warned that those SMCs who do not implement the MDM as per the Supreme Court order will be derecognized. Reiterating that there should be no compromise on MDM he asked all SMCs to have a meeting among them to discuss ways to implement the programme in letter and spirit and also mobilize community participation.

Most LP schools under Tura have their classes in the morning and as it has been found that some schools barely have 1-2 hours of class, all SMCs were directed to have their school timings from 7 am to 11.30 am everyday. However, in winters, the school timing would be from 8am to 12.30 am.

Tumour Tripper

India's wonder spice turmeric just doesn't appear to stop surprising scientists. It's been found to combat cancer, inflammation and infections. Now, Calcutta bio-chemists Gaurisankar Sa and Tanya Das have discovered yet another trait of this traditional medicinal herb.

The Bose Institute researchers have shown that curcumin, the yellow ingredient of turmeric rejuvenates a class of immune cells that fight cancer, strengthening the immune system by restoring key immune cells destroyed by tumours.

While studies over the past decade have helped scientists establish that curcumin can fight tumours, its effects on the immune system in cancer have been unclear. Patients with advanced cancer have poor immunity, because of the weakening effect of tumours. This allows the cancer to progress even faster and makes the patients susceptible to infections.

"Our work shows that curcumin is a double edged sword," Sa said. "on the one hand, it can help kill tumour cells and on the other replenish the weakened immune system in cancer."

The findings, published recently in the Journal of Biological Chemistry, suggest that curcumin may be used in the treatment of cancer by itself or in combination with standard anti-tumour drugs used in chemotherapy.

The researchers, in their studies on mice, have shown how curcumin increases the production of proteins that allow a set of immune cells called the CD4 and CD8 cells to proliferate and reduces the production of proteins that help destroy these cells.

"Curcumin thus blocks the tumour of immune cells," Sa said. "One of the roles of the immune cells is to destroy tumours. This happens in the earliest stages of the disease,' he said.

But tumours also release chemicals that destroy these immune cells, and advanced cancers simply overwhelm the cells. The studies by the Calcutta team have shown how curcumin interferes with the production of these chemicals by tumours and restores the immune cells.

However, scientists unconnected with the study have cautioned that curcumin has not become part of standard anti-cancer treatment as it is poorly absorbed into the bloodstream. Most of the curcumin consumed orally is excreted.

"Curcumin is one of the most attractive among emerging anti-cancer agents because it's been consumed through food for centuries", said Anirban Maitra, associate professor at the John Hopkins School of Medicine, USA. "But its poor solubility prevents it from widespread testing against human cancers," said Maitra, who's trying new ways to deliver curcumin in the body.

THE MOST IMPORTANT THINGS TO DO TO STAY HEALTHY

While we fret about the most complex and controversial aspects of our health care, don't forget to do these basic things that will definitely help your health.

Stop smoking -There is no question that if you smoke, stopping will be the very best thing you will ever do for your health. If you fail this time, keep on trying!

Get some exercise -Even a little is very helpful. You don't have to be an Olympic athlete to gain the benefits of exercise, which can occur at surprisingly low levels. Take a 15 minute walk . . . take the stairs . . . it will do a lot of good.

Eat sensibly -If you can't be perfect, do as good as you can. Don't just give up on good eating habits because it seems too hard.

Learn to take your own blood pressure

-Write it down. Bring the list to your doctor. This is the best way to avoid too much or too little treatment for this controllable disease.

Work on balance-Be involved...without being overly stressed...and leave time for relaxation. This is a big challenge for all of us, but it's really important for people with medical conditions, particularly those involving the heart.

Continue to be positive. You can "beat" these diseases-The advances in medicine, and heart disease in particular, have truly been staggering. Applying what we already know to your healthcare can lead to continued good health... and just wait until the next developments!

Selfishness always aims at creating around it an absolute uniformity of type. Unselfishness recognises infinite variety of type as a delightful thing, accepts it, acquiesces in it, enjoys it".
